it really depends on how the women view the issue of being genetically related to the child, and their feelings about how important it is to become pregnant and give birth.